Did Oswald Have LBJ In Mind?

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Warren Commission is exploring the possibility that accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald intended to kill then Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson in April, 1963, the Houston Post said Wednesday night.

In a story by Washington Bureau Chief Felton West, the Post said it learned from a reliable source that Marina Oswald, the accused assassin's widow, was questioned about this possibility during a recent interrogation.

Mrs. Oswald appeared before the commission last Thursday. The commission, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, is investigating the assassination of President Kennedy.

Mrs. Oswald told the commission, the Post said, that her husband went to a closet and got a pistol and said he was "going to see a visitor" in Dallas that weekend.

Mrs. Oswald said she talked her husband out of leaving with the pistol.

She said her husband had remarked earlier that somebody was coming to Dallas, or was in Dallas. She thought he said (former Vice-President) "Richard Nixon but he might have just said the "vice-president," meaning Mr. Johnson, and she was not sure which.

Mrs. Oswald's reported lack of certainty that it was Nixon her husband was talking about, coupled with other facts, has raised the possibility in the Warren Commission's minds that Oswald was planning to "go see" Mr. Johnson instead of Nixon, the Post said.

Assistants to President Johnson denied knowing anything about the testimony of Mrs. Oswald. They also said that, as far as they knew, the Warren Commission had not made any inquiry about this possibility at the White House.
